

FortWorth

Premiere Issue

HOME

the city's home magazine

STEWARDS OF STYLE

A designer infuses eclectic elegance
into a historic home.

GRACE MITCHELL

Before the local designer becomes a TV star

SERENE SETTINGS

A Spanish Revival with modern touches is a calming oasis for a young family.

From the publisher of Fort Worth Magazine

fwtx.com/fwHome

SUMMER 2017 • $4.99

7 2 >

7 25274 102796 5

Close To Home

Above and right: Model rooms for the remodeled Hotel Crescent Court.

Hotel Crescent Court Readies for Revamp

Dallas-based interior design firm, waldrop+nichols, has been tapped to redesign Hotel Crescent Court in Uptown Dallas. The hotel announced in March that it will launch a $30 million “re-imagination.”

The new look will bring a modern flair to the hotel’s “sophisticated Southern hospitality,” with a redesign of all 195 guest rooms and 31 suites, elevators and guestroom corridors, the 22,000-square-foot spa and fitness center, and the hotel lobby and bar.

“Embarking on a design renovation for a hotel with renowned presence and pedigree requires a commitment to honor the heritage, yet still create an aesthetic for the next generation,” Andrea Waldrop, vice president of waldrop+nichols studio, said in a press release.

Waldrop+nichols is behind numerous other Dallas hotel designs and the recent redesign of Shady Oaks Country Club. For Hotel Crescent Court, the firm will concentrate on the geometry of architecture and fashion, enlisting a color palette of limestone, blush, taupe and mink. Plans for the revamped space also include French-inspired patterns, textural wall panels, seeded glass sconce diffusers, and rift-cut silver walnut millwork.

Look for the revamp to launch spring 2017.